Ol' man Levi Unruh never meant a body harm,
Though he was the laziest, un-luckiest, farmer on the range;

He never made a profit — just sold pieces of the farm, But Ol' Man Levi Unruh's rotten luck was 'bout to change.

A rooster he'd named Mannie,
a skinny, scrawny bird, Grew tired of lazy Levi never bringing out the feed;

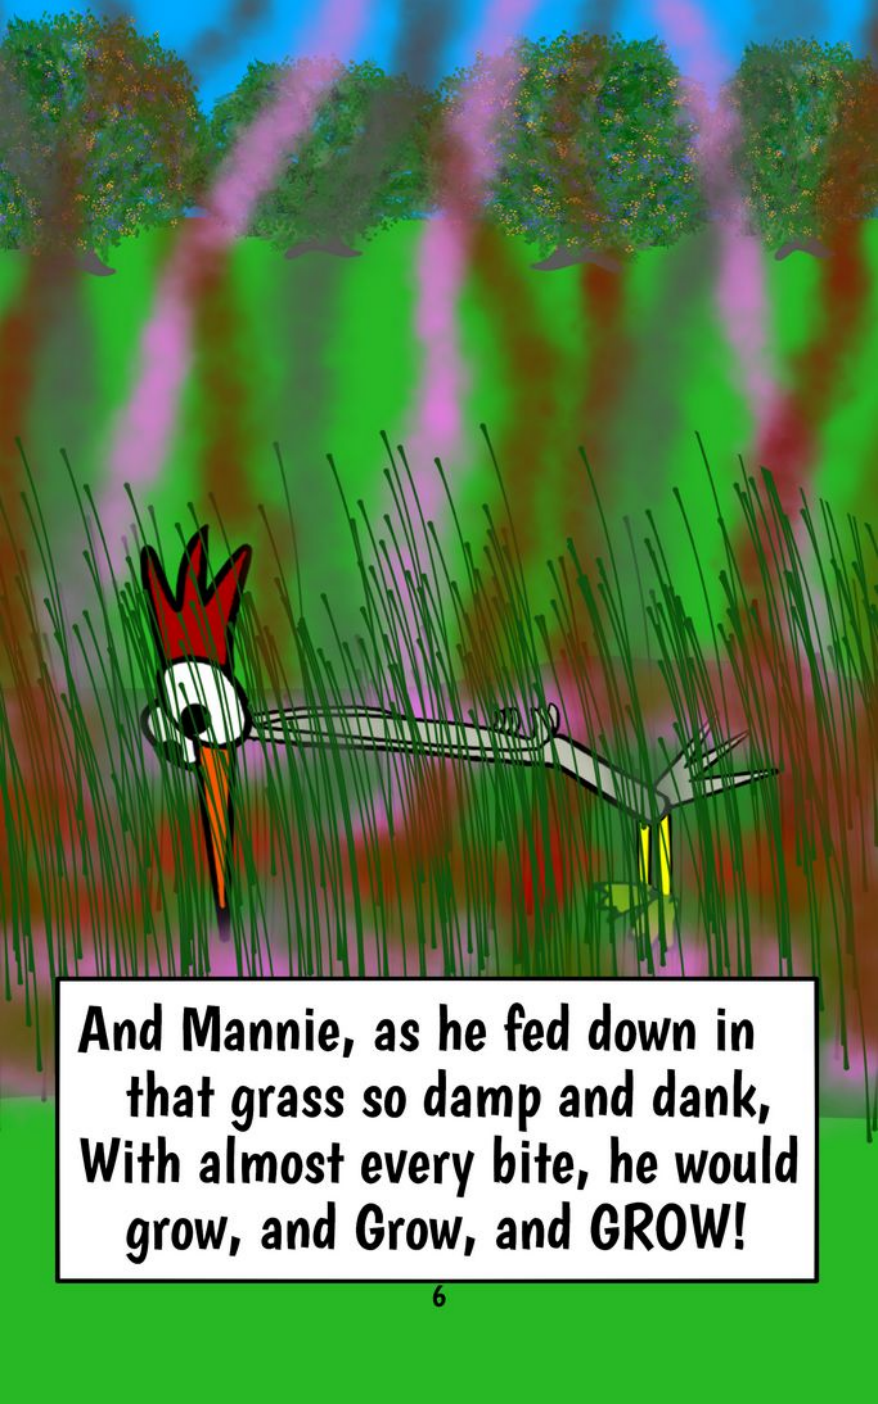
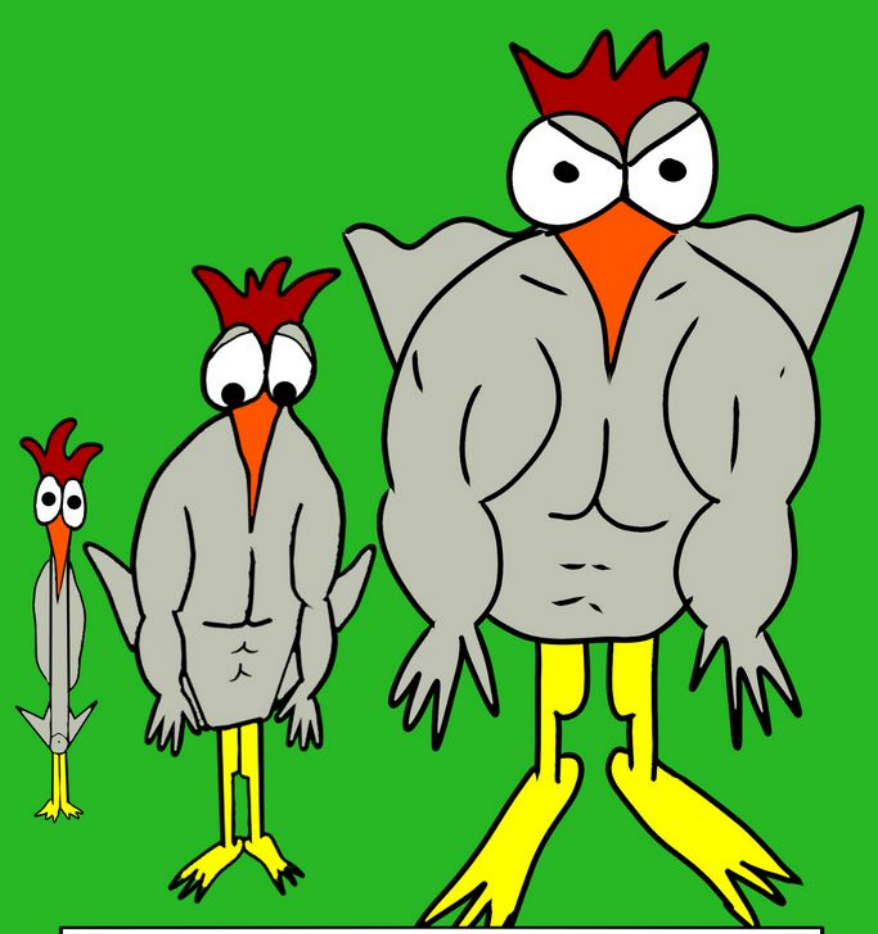
Through a hole in the chicken wire, Mannie went out in the yard,
Then down to the septic tank where there was lots of wild bird seed.

Now, for those of you a-wonderin', "What's a septic tank?"
Well, when you flush the toilet it's where all the yuckies go,



And Mannie, as he fed down in that grass so damp and dank, With almost every bite, he would grow, and Grow, and GROW!



He'd take a bite and up would pop a muscle on his chest, He'd take another bite and here'd come muscles on his arms,

Till Mannie'd lift a tractor fifty times without a rest,
And it was Mannie's massive muscles that saved Fallen Acres Farm.

One night a hungry weasel tiptoed through the yard,
And saw the hole in the chicken wire of
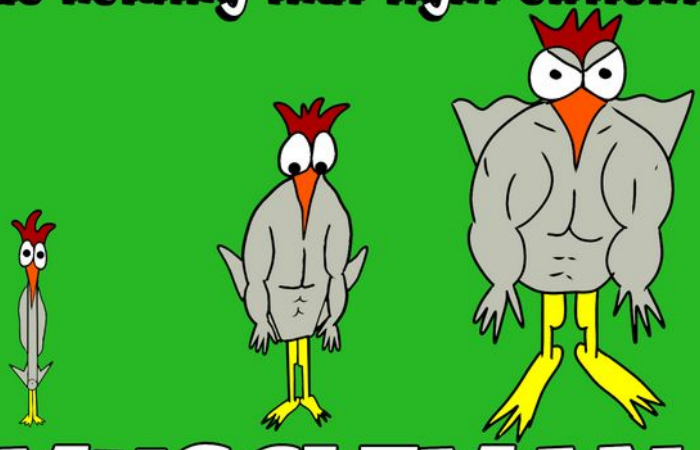
Fallen Acres Farm,

The weasel searched the hen house to make supper of a bird, And just as he grabbed a chicken, CLICK!– the lights came on.

And do you know who was holding that light switch?



MUSCLEMAN MANNIE THE WORLD'S STRONGEST CHICKEN!

Mannie booted that weasel right
out of that coop,
Up over the house, up over
the barn,
He booted that weasel up over the land,
Up over the the tractors, up over
the farm,
Then out in the yard Mannie
gave him a lickin', Till the weasel ran and told all the other weasels—

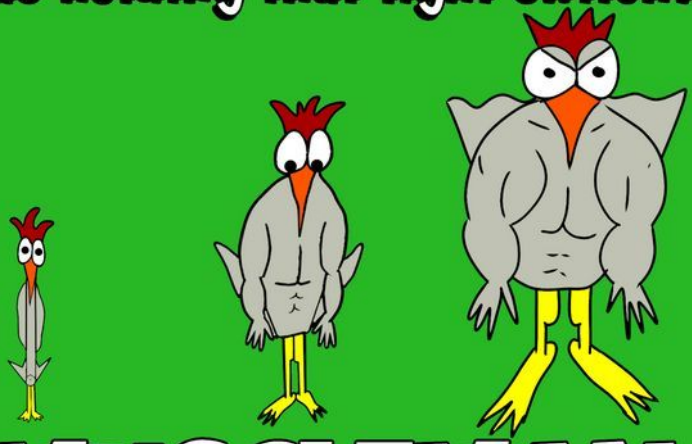
DON'T MESS WITH THAT CHICKEN!!!

The next night a mangy fox came sneakin' through the yard,
He saw the hole in the chicken wire of Fallen Acres Farm,

The fox snuck in the hen house
to make supper of a bird,
And as he grabbed a chicken,
CLICK!– the lights came on.

And do you know who was holding that light switch?



MUSCLEMAN MANNIE THE WORLD'S STRONGEST CHICKEN!

Mannie booted that fox right
out of that coop,
Up over the house, up over
the barn,
He booted that fox up over

Up over the the tractors, up over
the farm,
Then out in the yard Mannie
gave him a lickin',

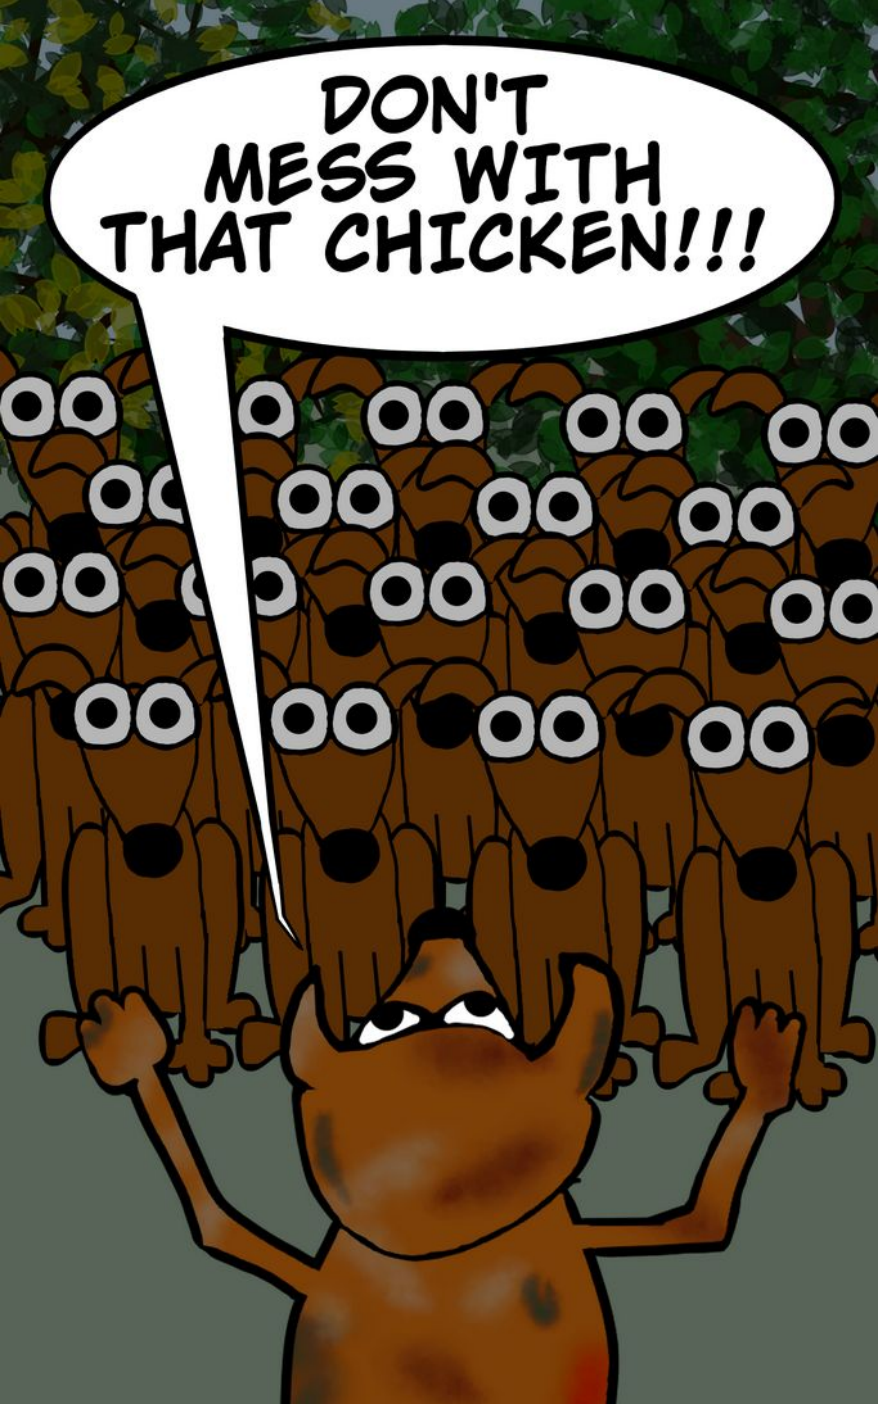
the other foxes—

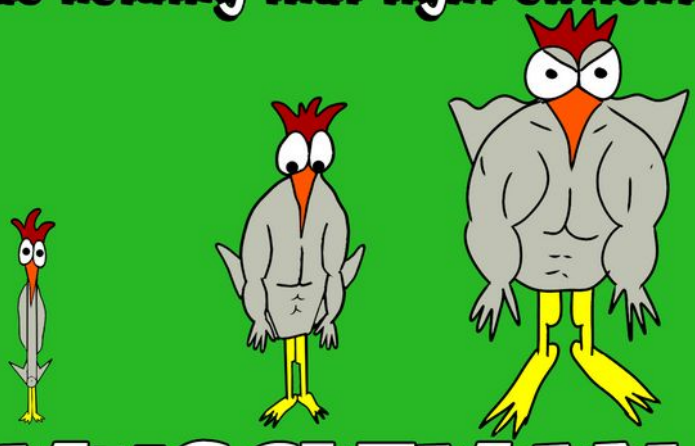


DON'T MESS WITH THAT CHICKEN!!!

The next night a bobcat came a-slinkin' through the yard, She saw the hole in the chicken wire of Fallen Acres Farm,

The bobcat snuck in the hen house to make supper of a bird,
And just as she grabbed a chicken, CLICK! — the lights came on.

And do you know who was holding that light switch?



MUSCLEMAN MANNIE THE WORLD'S STRONGEST CHICKEN!

Mannie booted that bobcat right out of that coop,
Up over the house, up over
the barn,

Till the bobcat ran and told all the other bobcats—

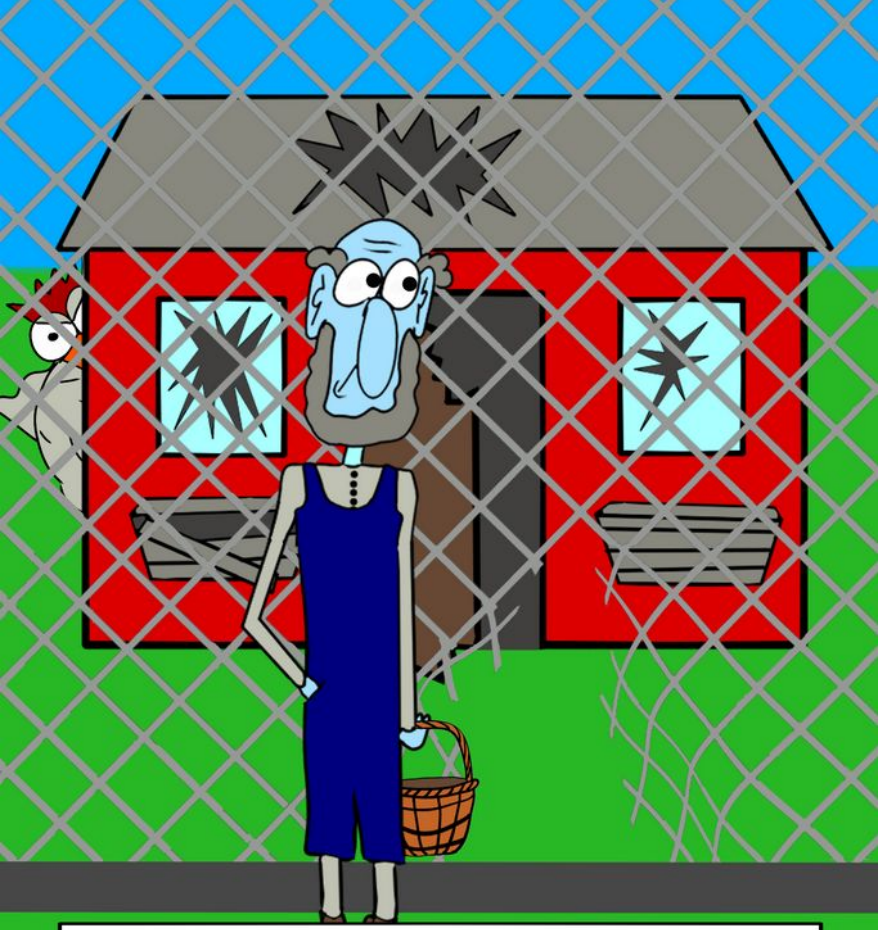
DON'T MESS WITH THAT CHICKEN!!!



Next mornin' Ol' Man Levi got a hankerin' for some eggs, So he grabbed himself a basket and went moseyin' 'cross the lawn,

He snuck inside the hen house, grabbed a chicken by its legs,
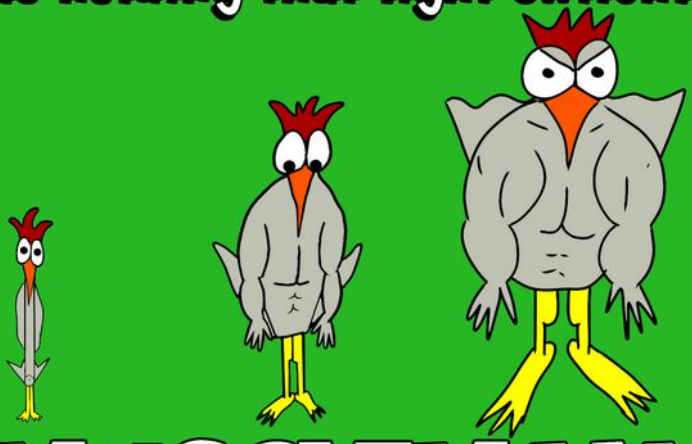
And as he reached for eggs,
CLICK! — the lights came on.

And do you know who was holding that light switch?



MUSCLEMAN MANNIE THE WORLD'S STRONGEST CHICKEN!

Mannie booted Ol' Levi right out of that coop,
Up over the house, up over
the barn,
He booted Ol' Levi up over
the land,
Up over the the tractors, up over
the farm,
Then out in the yard Mannie
gave him a lickin', Till Ol' Levi ran and told all the other people—

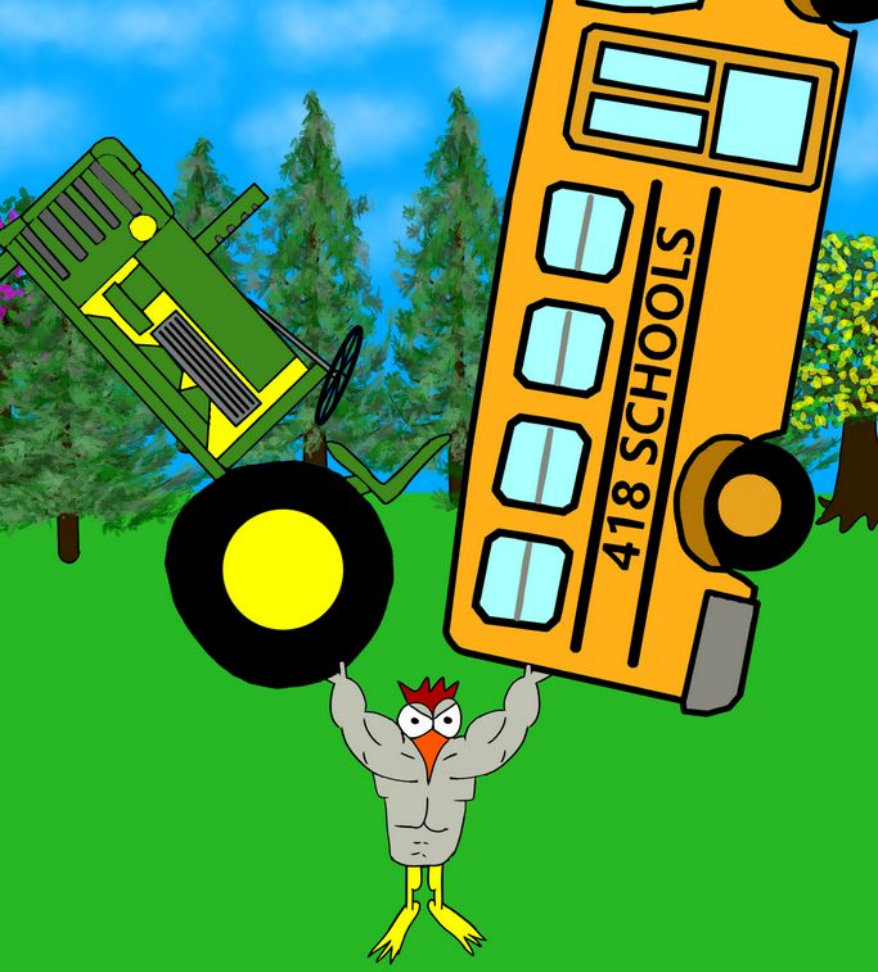
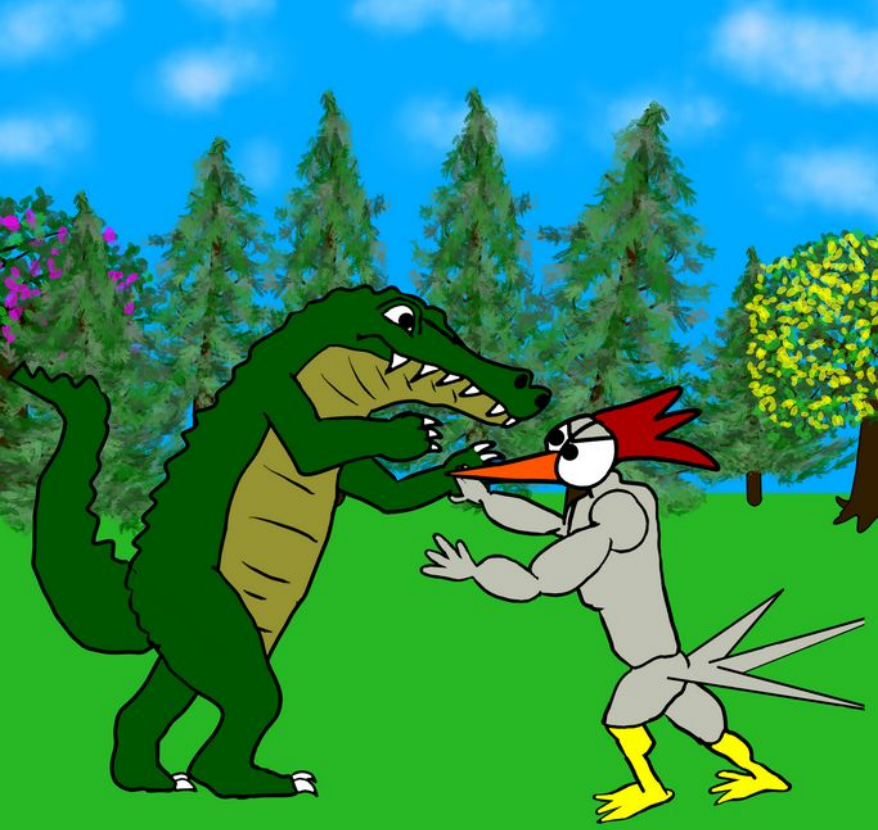
DON'T MESS WITH THAT CHICKEN!!!



People soon paid to see Mannie do tricks,
He'd lift tractors and buses, and throw sacks of taters,



And on Saturday nights, just to get in his kicks, Muscleman Mannie would fight alligators!

MANNIE & LEVI'S PLACE
FALLEN ACRES FARM
Ol' Levi's life underwent a great change, Selling tickets was easier than plowin' and pickin'.
And Fallen Acres Farm became the jewel of the range,
Thanks to Muscleman Mannie, The World's Strongest Chicken!
